

SIERRA MADRE NEWS

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1944

SIERRA MADRE, COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

VOLUME 14—NO. 16

Observations

By LEE SHIPPEY

WE now have millions of men overseas, tens of thousands of planes, tanks, guns, and all the gasoline, food, ammunition and supplies required for all these men and things. The job of getting them there largely falls on the Merchant Marine. Now the Merchant Marine is asking Sierra Madre Bundles for America to supply games and rescue kits for their men who sail the merchant ships—black out, of course, without radios for entertainment, and with the fear of U-boats all ways in mind. Games, or money to buy games and rescue kits will be a great help. Phone Mrs. Mary Goodfellow.

With Sierra Madre Boys in Service

Able Seaman Dan Davis of the Merchant Marine, is home on a 10-day furlough, visiting with his mother, Mrs. Julia Davis, 170 Adams street. Seaman Davis has been on active duty in the South Pacific for five months. This is his first furlough, and was about the nicest Christmas present his mother could have had.

The J. D. Grams of 29 Windsor lane had a letter from Pfc. J. D. Grams just before Christmas. He reports he is "all right," but said he would certainly like some sardines, salmon and cheese. His dad sent the salmon and cheese immediately, but couldn't get the sardines. J. D. Jr. reports that at his location the boys are rationed to one package of cigarettes a day, and seven pints of beer a week.

In a letter to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Cora E. Corum, Dennis F. Dempsey, CM. 2/c of the Navy Seabees, reports he has been transferred from Camp Perry, Va., where he has been taking training, to Camp Hollyday, Gulfport, Miss., where he will be given more extensive training.

Ensign William A. Farmer, son of Roy G. Farmer of Canyon Park, is now on active duty somewhere on the east coast. He had been stationed at Tucson, Ariz., where he had been sent to conduct a class in seamanship after a year of active duty. However, it seems he became a bit restless and asked for a transfer back into action. The Navy complied, and he is now on his way. His wife accompanied him to the east coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Dailey, 162 East Alegria ave., have been informed that Air Cadet Jack Dailey received his wings at Summer Field, N. M., December 5, and is now Second Lieutenant Jack Dailey. He has been transferred to Mather Field, Sacramento, to take his bomber pilot training, and his wife and baby daughter, Sharon Louise, have gone to Sacramento to be near him.

The C. A. Vans of 220 East Sierra Madre blvd. have received word that their son Frank is receiving his commission as a Second Lieutenant and assigned to the Adjutant General's staff. He will be stationed in the Pentagon Building, Washington, D. C.

Coast Guardsman Don Miller was home over the New Year's week-end. He is stationed near Malibu Beach, and feels he has been very fortunate so far, as he manages to get a day or two at home about every 10 days.

The Army Ordnance Department announced Monday that Pvt. Robert H. Clark, son of Mrs. Alice I. Clark of Lowell st., Sierra Madre, has completed a specialist's course on Cadillac tank engines at the Flint, Mich., plant of General Motors, and is ready for assignment to duty.

Mrs. Marjorie Ward, 62 Suffolk ave., had a Christmas letter from her son, A.R.M. 3/c Don Ward, Blimp Squadron 33, Tillamook, Ore. He is planning on making this his home when the war is over.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Chunn, 620 E. Sierra Madre blvd., had the pleasure of having one of their sons home for Christmas. Pfc. William S. Chunn, U. S. Marine Corps, stationed at Camp Pendleton, had a three-day Christmas pass. Friends of Chunn will be happy to hear that he has arrived safely in the British Isles, and report that he is well. A letter received by his parents on January 5 wished them and all his friends here a Merry Christmas.

COUPLE WED IN 1894 CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING HERE

On January 2, from 2 until 5 p.m., Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Blixt and Mrs. W. A. Stoddard were co-hostesses at a reception honoring the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Blixt of 77 East Montecito ave. The reception was held at the W. M. Blixt home, 35 S. Sunnyside ave., which was beautifully decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and yellow roses.

Over the table were suspended two huge golden bells, tied with gold ribbon. The wedding cake, frosted in yellow and white, was topped with white bells. Table decorations were yellow jonquils and yellow candles, and an oil-gold service was used. Mrs. Charles Strutt and Mrs. Raymond Penn presided.

Seventy guests enjoyed the party and Mr. and Mrs. Blixt were showered with gifts and congratulations. Many messages came from old friends in the East.

Mr. and Mrs. Blixt were located in Cheyenne, Wyo., for many years, where Mr. Blixt was connected with the Union Pacific Railroad. They have three children, W. M. Blixt and Mrs. W. A. Stoddard of Sierra Madre, and Mrs. W. E. Tangren of Salt Lake City, Utah, and three grandchildren, James and Toyole Blixt of Sierra Madre and Alfred Trone of Long Beach, the son of Mrs. Tangren. Mrs. Tangren came out from Salt Lake City especially for the anniversary celebration, and will remain as a house guest of her sister, Mrs. Stoddard, until January 19.

First Girl Marine Realizes Ambition

Pvt. Opal Lois John, Sierra Madre's first woman Marine, has arrived at Camp Lejeune, New River, N. C., to begin her training as a member of the Women's Reserve of the Marine Corps. A letter to her mother here at 49 N. Grov. st., says she is delighted with the training and the opportunity to release a Marine who has been holding down a desk job, for active duty.

Hunters Take Only 500 Deer in Angelus Forest in Season

Forest rangers and officials of the California Fish and Game Commission report that only 500 deer were taken by hunters in Los Angeles county and the Angelus Forest during the December deer hunting season, first time the refuge areas in the forest were opened since 1916.

Officials declare that without exception condition of the animals taken was very poor, bearing out their contention that there has been a great over-production in the refuges, a condition that may result in another open season in the refuges next winter.

No accidents to hunters or damage to property was reported in the Angelus Forest during the open season.

WAC in Italy Writes Father Here About Early Adventures in the Service

Now luxuriously quartered in marble halls in Italy, Pvt. Phyllis Dukeshire, related her first experiences as a WAC in a letter received Christmas Day by her father, Phillip D. Dukeshire of 383 W. Grand View ave.

Impatient to be on her way and get into action, her letter began with the joy of finally getting under way. . . the knowledge that she was on the brink deep, bound for somewhere—she had no idea where. And then came the joy of walking down the gangplank from an Army transport into North Africa (French Morocco) while the band played on a deck below. Concluding her letter Pvt. Dukeshire tells of her third adventure—arrival unexpectedly in Italy.

Her letter to her father follows, in part:

"From the swaying of myself, my bed and my notebook, I should judge that we were at present somewhere in mid-ocean. It's a strange mixture, this trip, of luxury and Army discipline. We're living in officers' quarters, eating the best of food and being protected from the enemy, from the soldiers and from the possibility of our own indiscretions."

"So far I haven't been given any job to do—but there is a lot of guard duty being given out (mostly directing traffic) as we're as K. P. My turn will probably come tomorrow. At least there is one relief. It is no longer any secret that we are going somewhere."

"The trip is over. We're in North Africa—French Morocco. The biggest thrill of all was coming slowly down the gangplank—the band playing down below—clusters of natives, soldiers and sailors around—big ships behind us—trying to realize that this was in fact—North Africa."

"Driving off, our first reaction was—North Africa, nothing—this is Southern California! Aside from the natives, it could have been. Beautiful in sections! We kept busy all the way out waving at Arabs, soldiers and sailors. Every time we passed a group of tents I thought—this is it—this is where we turn in. But the Army had a surprise in store for us. Good, solid buildings—beds—home-made—but beds nevertheless."

"I've seen camels in zoos but never have I seen such mangy, dirty, homely camels as those in North Africa. No dirtier, however, than the natives. They tell us that every native wears all the clothing he owns and I can well believe it. They love to wave and salute, and make the V for victory sign. The women pay no attention to us although not all of them keep their faces covered."

Red Cross Chapter to Elect Officers on January 17

Annual meeting of the Sierra Madre Red Cross chapter will be held at the City Hall at 8 p.m. on the evening of January 17. Every person within the territory of the chapter who has paid membership dues within a year or who is a life or patron member of the chapter is expected to attend the meeting and vote.

A new board of directors will be elected, also a new advisory board. Annual reports will be given by all chairmen on the work done through 1943. This is the one meeting of the year open to the general public.

Noted Etcher's Work Will be Shown at Wistaria Gardens

An outstanding collection of etching and etched books by Bernhardt Wall, H.H.L., recent addition to Sierra Madre's art colony, will go on exhibition at Wistaria Vine Gardens, home of the Sierra Madre Arts Guild, at 8 o'clock tomorrow, Friday evening, January 7. On the opening night of the exhibition Mr. Wall, rated one of the world's leading etchers, will go through the process of making an etching, all in an hour. The exhibition will continue daily from 2 until 5 p.m. through January 14. There is no admission charge.

"We're in Italy! Believe it or not—and the work is starting—thank heaven! We're housed in 'marble halls'—an ex-university, run by nuns. The nuns are still living here, running around making us comfortable. . . trying to make themselves understood in Italian. There are six of us in the room, overlooking a beautiful courtyard. Even the back stairs are marble, but by the time we reach the fifth floor our appreciation of the beautiful marble staircase, is slightly enfeebled."

"The people on the streets are bedraggled and discouraged looking. But the little orphans who are being schooled and mothered by the nuns downstairs are darling."

Pvt. Dukeshire was a psychotherapist at the Newberry State Hospital in Michigan at the time of her induction into the WAC and had resided here with her father and sister Dora Dukeshire, an attorney. She is a graduate of the Gordon Bible College in Boston, where she received the Bachelor of Theology degree.

But the men and children smile and have a great time. I have yet to see a fat native. They seem to start out in the morning—the whole family—and lay themselves down to sleep when they get tired. Don't know when or how they eat—haven't caught any of them in the act yet. . .

This Red Cross Class is Designed to Be of Real Value to Home Makers

The Red Cross announces the opening of a new home-nursing class, probably the last one this winter. The first meeting will be on Monday, January 10, from 2 until 4, in the Congregational Church, where a room has been set aside for this purpose. The class is limited to 20, so that first come first served will be the rule. Mrs. Augusta Coats, R.N., who has been teaching two classes of this type in Monrovia, will be the instructor. The course requires 24 hours of instruction, and the class will meet twice a week, Monday and Thursday, from 2 until 4, thus completing the work in six weeks.

These classes are not, as many people seem to believe, of a technical nature, says Mrs. Coats. They are given to the women of the community to help them handle the problem of sickness in the home during this time of emergency, when there is a shortage of both doctors and nurses.

The work is mainly of a very practical nature, showing the best use of home equipment, and offering many short cuts and useful pointers to the mother faced with a siege of sickness and unable to obtain professional aid. It is of especial interest to prospective mothers, as a section of the work deals with the preparation for and care of the new baby.

HAWKS EMPLOYEES ROMP IN SNOW

Chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hawks, a group of Sierra Madre young people including Miss Mildred Cook, Miss Virginia Liscomb, Charles Brown, Tom Solury, Joe Grippi and Edward Cabin, spent the New Year's week-end at the Stanley Decker cabin at Forest Home. The party went out on Friday afternoon, and reported that the roads were icy, but that the snow was dry and beautiful near the cabin. They enjoyed bob-sledding, played in the snow, and took some motion pictures of the group.

GEO. McROBERTS' HAVE A YOUNG SON

Mr. and Mrs. George McRoberts of 536 W. Highland ave., are the proud parents of a baby son, John Nicholas, born on December 18 at the Huntington Hospital, Pasadena. Mrs. McRoberts and the baby are now at home.

Women's Bible Class Elects Officers

The Women's Bible Class of Bethany Church elected officers Friday, December 31, as follows: Mrs. G. T. Scott, president; Mrs. J. D. McAndrew, vice-president; Miss Minerva Thompson, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Lillian Stilson, corresponding secretary.

MASONS INVITED TO DE MOLAY DINNER

The Arcadia Chapter Order of De Molay is having a pot-luck dinner at 6 o'clock Saturday, January 8, in the Masonic Temple, Arcadia. All Masonic families are cordially invited.

MODERN PRISCILLAS GUESTS OF MRS. HULL

The Modern Priscillas will meet Thursday, January 13, at the home of Mrs. W. S. Hull. Mrs. Adria Johnson and Mrs. J. S. Billheimer will be co-hostesses.

A.L.A. Activities

Unit No. 297 held its annual Christmas party at the home of Sylvia Quittner last Thursday evening and there was a good attendance in spite of the rain. Hospital Chairman Lotta Hopper told of interesting experiences in distributing gifts to the hospitalized veterans. Children of our unit members were invited guests to the OES Christmas party. Child Welfare Chairman Bertha Irvine remembered 13 children of veterans at Christmas, also needy children in town.

The secretary read letters of thanks for gifts from our hometown service men both here in the United States and overseas. Membership chairman reported 39 members paid up. Time spent in war activities amounted to 308 hours and 97 hours for community service.

Those reported sick were Ralph Koons, husband of our treasurer, with flu; Val Miller, home after 15 days in the Naval hospital; Mr. Gabrielle, ill at Sawtelle; Lucille Pickett, ill with flu.

A special guest at the party was Helene Smith, past president of the unit, who was down from Santa Barbara for the holidays. Following the meeting, the guests exchanged Christmas gifts. An interesting contest of guessing baby pictures caused much merriment. The hostess served a delicious chop suey supper.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, January 13, at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Walter Nolas, E. Grandview ave. —MAYBELLE BARKER, Press Chairman.

Gas Coupons Must Be Surrendered

Anyone selling a used auto after January 1 will have to take in all unused coupons in their gas ration books to their local board before selling their car. They will be given a receipt by the board, and the sale and transfer of the car will not be legal without this receipt attached. And whoever buys the car, when applying for gasoline to operate it on, must present this receipt before any gas ration will be issued. This change in practice is intended to prevent extra coupons from slipping into black markets.

Farewell Party for Mrs. Dan Hastings

Mrs. Victor H. Woehler of 65 Manzanita ave. gave a farewell party last Thursday, December 30, for Mrs. Daniel B. Hastings, 65 Orange Grove ave. The family has sold its modern home here and is leaving to live in Manhattan Beach. Guests included Mrs. John L. Woehler, Mrs. M. G. Walt, Mrs. William R. Smvne, Mrs. Daniel H. Lewis, Mrs. H. M. Selk and Mrs. Hastings. Refreshments were served, and the guest joined in wishing Mrs. Hastings happiness in her new location.

Reception Held for Miss Ella Bush

Trustees of the Sierra Madre Public Library gave a reception in honor of Miss Ella Sheparu Bush, on the afternoon of New Year's Day, from 3 until 5. The occasion was the first showing of Miss Bush's portrait in oil of Mrs. S. R. Sheriff, wife of the pastor of Bethany Church, which is now on display at the library. Guests were mostly former trustees of the library, of whom Miss Bush is one, and members of the local art colony.

Barbara Gerschler Weds a Corporal

Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Young, formerly of 185 Santa Anita ct., announce the marriage of their daughter, Barbara Gerschler, to Corporal William S. Carter of the Army Air Corp., on January 4. Corporal Carter is from Lenore City, Tenn., and the wedding took place at the plantation home of the Carter family, near Lenore City. Mrs. Young accompanied her daughter, Miss Barbara, on the trip to Tennessee.

FREE SCHOLARSHIPS OPEN FOR SINGERS

Following her yearly custom, Mrs. Grace McCarty, 309 East Sierra Madre Boulevard, teacher of voice in Sierra Madre, is offering a ten-week free scholarship to the person between the ages of thirteen and thirty, who, in her opinion, has the best voice.

Contestants are asked to phone for appointments for audition, to avoid interrupting lessons at the studio. The number is CU. 5-4895. The tests will be held through January 16th. This contest is open to every one with a desire to sing, the one restriction being that the contestant must not be a pupil of Mrs. McCarty now, or at any former time.—Adv.

Remarkable Record Made by Schools in Jeep Campaign

Students of Southern California schools invested $6,487,660 in War Bonds and Stamps during the 60-day "triple-threat" Jeep campaign which ended December 7, establishing a new high record for a similar period.

The 966 participating schools bought 3215 jeeps, exceeding the original quota by 2195.

This was termed "a remarkable achievement" by Avery J. Gray, director of Thrift Practice for the Los Angeles city and county School Savings and Loan Association, and liaison officer, Treasury's "Schools-at-War" educational committee, who made public the figures.

Gray revealed that 812 public schools bought 2914 jeeps, 80 parochial schools bought 271, and

SIERRA MADRE WOMEN SEND 120 POUNDS OF GEE-GAWS TO FIGHTING MEN IN FAR PLACES

Lives of Soldiers Wounded in the Jungles Saved Through Barter Jewelry

Approximately 120 pounds of costume jewelry, knickknacks, compact mirrors, and other trinkets contributed by Sierra Madre women have been delivered to the nation's fighting men in the islands of the Pacific, Sicily, Italy, and Africa where they will be used as barter to secure services and commodities from the natives among whom they find themselves.

Mrs. Lyda Stewart, who directed the campaign here which was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, has received a letter of thanks from the Service Men's Relief Association headquarters in San Francisco announcing that Sierra Madre's contribution was among the finest received by the organization.

"Women who contributed these trinkets can little realize the service they have rendered our fighting men," the secretary wrote. "We have received many letters from the battle fronts expressing appreciation for barter material sent them. Several letters told of lives being saved when badly wounded American soldiers were carried out of the jungle by natives to field hospitals in return for some of these baubles; otherwise they probably would have perished. These are not isolated cases; there have been many of them and the women of your community should know about them."

The remaining 30 were financed by the 14 private schools. The purchases were subdivided as follows: 1261 army jeeps, 972 Navy "quacks" and 982 Air Force "grasshoppers."

A few schools with small enrollments were permitted to participate through a "Junior" campaign which resulted in the purchase of 105 motor scooters, 90 life floats and 125 parachutes.

There are no fragments so precious as those of time, and none are so heedlessly lost by people who cannot make a moment, and yet can waste years.—Montgomery.

THE BIG SHIFT

While the worst of the war is still ahead of us on the fighting fronts, the worst of the war is behind us on the production front. That, in effect, is what Henry J. Kaiser, the world's largest ship-builder, said last week, when he declared that from now on we must expect a tapering-off in war industries—an idea that the time has come to start the gigantic task of shifting back gradually into the production of civilian goods.

There is still an urgent necessity for sustained production of war supplies and materials, Mr. Kaiser warned, but "so great is this country's productive capacity that the peak of our production is past before we have hardly begun to fight..." Then the prodigious builder declared that "manufacturers are going to have to prepare to substitute the people for the government as their customer"—and that we must have draft boards functioning in reverse to channel men back into private industry as they return from the battlefields, or as they are released from war factories. He suggests: (1) The creation of a great risk credit pool, with banks, insurance companies, investment trusts, labor unions and the government all contributing to the big backlog of capital to recover plants to peace-time production. (2) The use of a questionnaire among all men in the armed forces to find out the kind of jobs they want to return to—and preparation, at home, on the basis of the questionnaire returns, to provide those jobs before the men get back.

"After credit is furnished," said Mr. Kaiser, "comes the creative mind—the inventors and the planners, the 200,000 or 300,000 engineers of this country. Then the builders, the men who make plans into reality. Then the distributors and sellers."

That's the Kaiser blueprint for the big shift over from war to peace. And whether or not we agree with all its particulars, we do agree heartily that it's time to get started on the job, so that when peace comes we will be well on our way to all-out civilian production.

MORE PROMISING

While the lady of the house may have spent her ration points a bit recklessly to provide a bountiful table during the holidays, with the result that there'll be some temporary scrimping in the hash-and-soup days to follow, California's food outlook, on the whole, is considerably brighter.

The authority for that cheerful news is State Director of Agriculture W. J. Cecil. While butter is still scarce in the cities, although "quite plentiful" near manufacturing plants, that's about the only dark spot in the picture, according to the agricultural director.

Packing houses are full of meat and not operating anywhere near capacity, reports Mr. Cecil. Vegetables are being produced in sufficient quantities to meet present needs. California chickens will lay as many eggs during 1944 as they did during 1943—when a new record was set. And it now appears that point rationing of fresh milk will not be necessary.

We are happy to have this reassuring report from Director of Agriculture Cecil. Now if Washington will only let enough alone, and not try to improve too much on Mother Nature's program, perhaps the New Year won't be quite so hectic as the year we've just left behind us!

KEEP ON

Backing the Attack!
WITH WAR BONDS

Here
and
There

by DEAN A. G. H. BODE

AMONG thoughtful people the desire for victory is linked with the desire for a better world. Some light is thrown on the present world-situation by an author unknown to me who has written the following modern adaptation of an old and familiar story. It is slightly abridged:

A father had a son whose name was Man. The son wanted his freedom and his share of the family fortune. "I want to be free," he said; "there is too much of the world which is unexplored, and there is something in me which urges to this adventure." The father replied, "There is much in what you say," and gave him what he wanted. But as Man was leaving his home the father said, "But don't forget me, son."

Man made a journey into a far country at ever greater distance from his father's house. And as he met with new experiences and adventures, the memory of home became dim in his mind. He explored the whole of the earth, the heavens above, the earth beneath and the water under the earth; he pioneered every realm of thought; he explored the unknown frontiers of the human mind, and thereby Man learned much that had not been known before, and thereby much good was done to the race of Man.

But he became dazzled by his own achievements. And his quiet self-respect, derived from his father, and nourished and sustained in his father's home, turned to self-glorification. And Man imagined himself the master of all things, forgetting whence he had come and whither he was going.

He built a vast material civilization. He nourished the body of Man and cared for it as had never been done before, so that even the poor had comforts which kings of old might have envied. He cared for Man's body. But Man was not body alone. And at times, hardly knowing why, Man was hungry, hungry, hungry.

He built a vast material civilization, and became immersed in the material, in those things which he could touch and handle and measure, until he became convinced that only the material, the measurable was real... forgetting what he had learned from his father of the nature of the world and of man and the deep meaning of life.

He built a vast material civilization. But there were deep gulfs set between extreme riches on the one side and dire poverty on the other; between beauty and ugliness; between culture and ignorance; between comfort and squalor. And there was too little concern of man for man. Man's peoples were exploited; many denied their simple rights as human beings; many eating out their hearts in enforced idleness. And there was vast discontent in the land of Man.

He built a vast civilization. He abolished distance and overcame space so that thoughts and deeds in one corner of the earth were known instantly around the world. The ends of the earth met; the world was made physically one. But there was no brotherhood; no unifying conception widely held which made the peoples of the earth recognize their oneness, their interdependence, their solidarity, their responsibility one for the other, their brotherhood; nothing to convince them that their battle was not against each other but against nature, unlocking nature's secrets, unearthing its vast resources and equitably distributing them, so that the human spirit at length could arise free and untrammelled, flowering in all its fullness.

And so there arose mighty wars in the land of Man, and there was destruction unbelievable, and death and desolation. And then Man began to come to himself. And he thought of his father's home. And he began to wonder what his father would have done had he been in his place; how his father's wisdom, his father's unbounded goodwill would have avoided the pitfalls into which Man had fallen. For after all, the earth was his father's. He had made it. He ought to understand it. So Man said, "I will arise and go to my father. I will sit at his feet and take counsel with Him."

And Man arose and went to his father. And while he was yet a great way off his father saw him and ran to meet him, stilling Man's self-condemnation, saying, "We can work it out together, son."

SO ends the paraphrase of the old story. It suggests that we go back to the Father of us all. So do many of our statesmen in the service and leaders of thought. So did the call to the New Year's Day of Prayer. But many people do not understand prayer, have given it up, or pray only when great danger or calamity threatens. Perhaps a very simple explanation by Dr. Fiedler may be welcome. "Prayer," he says, "is your dominant desire." If your desire is only to a good time for yourself, that is your prayer. If you desire to be kind and helpful to others, especially those in need, that is your prayer. If in this troublous time you are really dominated by a desire for a better world, beginning with your imperfect self, and doing all you can to spread the necessary justice and goodwill, that will be your prayer. And you will welcome an alliance with a Supreme Being—a heavenly Father, who will help you and use you in His purpose of good for all mankind.

Here is a prayer for a better world in which all of us would be glad to join:

Eternal Father, in whom the whole family of earth is one—over-riding our distinctions of race and nationality and economic class, breathe Thy Spirit into our hearts, into the hearts of all men of good will in every land, that when this day of purging is past, we and they may establish a new order wherein the nations of the world may live together in trust and fellowship, in justice and peace, according to Thy will.

Since those against whom we now contend in battle must finally be brought into the common community, lest we destroy each other by continual strife, grant us the spirit of charity toward them even as we oppose them resolutely; so that pride and vindictiveness may not corrupt the victory for which we pray. Let Thy majesty, not ours, be established. Let Thy will be done on this earth. We pray for all the young men and women now in the service of their country, on land, on sea, and in the air, in the hope that from this grim struggle there may be wrested some great good for our world. We pray for them all... we pray also for our own boys and girls... that Thou wilt have them in Thy keeping, and sustain them with a sense of Thy presence; that even amidst the battle's jar they may find that peace of Thine, which man did not make, and man cannot mar. And grant that when this tyranny is overpast we may rebuild our broken world in justice, in fraternity, in peace. Amen.

Are you hoping it will be a boy? Well, the odds are 10,584 to 10,000 that it will be. That is the ratio of the number of boys to the number of girls born in the United States during 1942. It seems that every time we get into a war the birth of boy babies increases. Whether the stock has any agreement with old man Mars on that score we don't know, but the present ratio is about as it was during the last war, and is the highest it has been in many years. Somehow, we never thought that the "pin-up" girls would lose their popularity to the "pin-up" boys. But anything can happen in war time.

Investigations show that the war has had no harmful effects on the physique of London children owing to the carefully planned wartime diet and fair distribution of food. The average London boy, 12 years of age, is 2.4 inches taller than his father was at the same age; and the average girl is 2.1 inches taller and 13.4 pounds heavier than her mother at the same age.

Many of the men over 40, who aspire to public office, look upon the 1944 elections as their last chance to get a foothold, and the lists of candidates will be correspondingly heavy. When the war ends, and the youngsters come back who have been flying the planes, sailing the ships and toting the guns, the oldsters figure that the voters will give the breaks to the lads with the campaign ribbons. So for many of the old-timers, it's now or never.

The South Seas will never be the same again. That's one of the many things this war has done. According to letters we have seen from the boys "out there," the native girls don't begin to measure up to Dorothy Lamour standards—and sarongs will never have the same appeal again. Nor is that all. A news dispatch from "Somewhere in the Pacific" reports that straying Marines, who came upon a band of wild looking natives holding women convinced the world revolution should start right here in America, was not half bad as such things go. But the lyrics, calling "ye prisoners of starvation, we wretched of the world" to arise a mold a bold new order on the quivering carcass of the old, offended practically everybody but the red hots. Since the song of world revolution was written, the Russian people have battled a ruthless, foreign aggressor on their own beloved soil, and for years ahead, they will be occupied in getting their country back in shape again. Logically enough, the Council of Peoples Commissars has decided the old Internationale does not express the feeling of the Russian people today. A new Soviet national anthem already has been announced. Songs, like battle standards, have led the people of every country in every age on their crusades. When finally their cause is won, lost or forgotten, the songs, too, pass into history. The dousing of the inflammatory old Internationale is as good an indication as we have seen that the Russian seat of Communism admittedly expects to have its hands too full with its own war and post-war problems to nurture revolutionary fires over here.

What They Say ---

ALICE EALAND, Hollywood extra—"I'm aware I'm the third girl to sign with Charlie Chaplin to co-star in his new picture about Bluebird. The first sued him, the second married him—but with me, it's business—strictly."

J. W. WHITEHEAD, Rubber Co. exec., Norwalk—"When you remember that it took 40 years to perfect natural rubber tires, the strides made with synthetic rubber in a little more than a year are truly remarkable."

CAPT. BOB RILEY, Bell, Calif., pilot of B-24 "Star Euster," veteran of raids on Rabaul, Saipan, Wewak, Lae, Buna, Rikata Bay, Bougainville, Gasmada—"The Japs were tough enough in the early months, but lately, on something like even terms, we have really been overwhelming them. You can chalk that up to superior equipment."

a tribal celebration, found them singing "You Are My Sunshine," "A Bicycle Built for Two" and "Curry Me Back to Old Virginia." Hollywood, we feel, will have to find a new locale for those romantic screen portrayals of beautiful maids and god-like men, living in some glorious Eden unsullied by civilization. And we wonder where they'll find it!

Number one postwar item on the shopping list of the American public will be an automobile, according to a recent nation-wide survey. Approximately 21 percent named "a car" as the thing they hoped to buy first after the war.

In a recent auto race in Brazil, 32 cars participated—and not one was propelled by gasoline, all being charcoal-burners, Brazil having practically no petroleum of her own.

The 10-month traffic death toll in the United States in 1943 was 18,110—a 20 percent decrease from last year and a 43 percent drop from 1941, according to the National Safety Council. October's fatalities in traffic, however, showed a jump of 18 percent over the same month a year ago. Explanation of the increase when compared with October of 1942 centers about the fact that October set a new low for that calendar year, and also marked the introduction of the 35-mile-an-hour speed limit. Surveys on traffic speeds recently completed nationwide indicate further that motorists generally "are disregarding wartime traffic regulations and pledges in the optimistic belief that victory is just around the corner."

Russia's recent repudiation of the Internationale, fiery riling song of the Communists, lifted a thorn from the sides of conservatives and peaceful thinkers throughout the world. The music, bellowed by a whole generation of "red" exhorters and echoed loudly by audiences of flat-heeled

BOY SCOUT RAMBLINGS

KEEP 'EM CLIMBING

By COL. ROBERT L. SCOTT
U. S. Army Air Corps
Formerly Eagle Scout Troop 23,
Macon, Georgia

I remember that my most heartbreaking day was when this war was declared and I was told by my superiors that at thirty-four I was "too old" to fly a Fighter Ship into combat. It took me nearly a year, and a few Japs had to die before my guns before I had satisfied myself that that theory was wrong. I am very glad that I'm not too old for Scouting. "Once a Scout—Always a Scout" has flashed through my mind many times during the years recently passed.

Since leaving active Scout work and going out into a military profession I have found countless ways in which Scouting has aided me. As I look back over Merit Badge qualifications I realize that each one achieved taught me something lasting for my peacetime job or the wartime job that eventually came. I know definitely that my work on the Badge of Aviation gave me the background that saw me through the trials of becoming a military pilot. In fact I can say with emphasis that every Merit Badge that I earned has helped me in some way with advancement in my flying profession and in the game of life. Men who have not had the opportunity to be Boy Scouts continue to marvel at the fact that we who were Scouts can identify the poison plants in the jungle, that we know simple means of getting water in very terrible places, and that we can cook without implements and utensils. I have been gratified but not surprised that former Boy Scouts have been my best leaders in combat as well as in my training detachments before war came.

War is a cruel game that was most certainly never conceived by the great men who developed and organized the Scouting movement. Somehow I think that in the back of their minds these organizers knew that if boys would follow the Boy Scout Motto and practice the Scout Laws that war would never come. But as we are human and from time immemorial, there have been wars, those great leaders knew that war in all its terror would continue to come. They, therefore, trained American boys who could serve in time of peace or if need be—fight for their country in time of war. That is why we should take every opportunity to advance through the ranks of Scouting until we are not only First Class Scouts, but on to the rank of Eagle Scout. Even then we should strive for every Merit Badge in order that we prepare ourselves for any emergency. No true words were ever said to us back in young Scouting days than that we were the men of the next 20 years. What we prepared ourselves for then as Scouts would decide whether or not our country continued to advance or retrogressed. Each Scout should do his utmost to advance as high as possible up the promotion ladder of Scouting. He should "strive as though he can never reach the goal he seeks to obtain." For only in that way is he prepared for this game of life whether it be to help our country—or the world—in peace as in war.

Ration Token Use to Be Demonstrated

While the red and blue ration tokens won't be brought into use until February 27, "previews" of these will be staged early this month in most sections of the country. Various grocery chains are cooperating with OPA to stage these programs, which will include demonstrations of how these are to be used in conjunction with the ration-book coupons. The tokens will be given as change for the unexpended portion of ration coupons.

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

A veteran Naval flyer at 25, Lieut. Robert Pershing Williams, of Pierre, S. Dak., prowls the Atlantic in a Grumman Avenger torpedo plane, hunting the German U-boat, his battle station a plane carrier on the ocean. ## UNCENSORED

By LEONE BAXTER

Climbing as steeply as a Spitfire on the tail of a Hun, the graph of increasing child labor is cracking the composure of school authorities, parents and labor leaders who thought its ghost long laid.

From New York to San Francisco, in big industrial cities and small agricultural towns, junior and senior high schools report from one-fifth to over half their students are now employed part time. The majority, too, are having a hard time of it, what with failing asleep in class and taking days out to rest up from the heavy schedule.

Fully 10 per cent of the school enrollment transferred itself bodily in 1942, and the exodus from the halls of learning continued throughout 1943.

There is no doubt that children are being exploited in many instances. But the main factor worrying authorities and parents alike is not any skimpiness in the youngsters' pay checks, but rather, the obviously bad effect of an over-supply of cash in the hands of adolescents.

The parallel paths of easy money, neglected schoolroom and juvenile delinquency are too evident to discount or dismiss. And the hazard to health is seen only in the moral danger. Young girls skipping school to make more money in their part-time work as messengers than their teachers, are living unhealthily at best. Fancy salaries for after-midnight jobs setting pins in bowling alleys, ushering in theatres and serving in lunchrooms are causing young boys and girls as much grief today as their loss of needed schooling may bring them later.

That unaccustomed big wartime earnings warp the wisdom of many adults is manifest in the beer parlors and juke joints of any boom town. The immature judgment of most juveniles can hardly be expected to exceed their elders.

Deeply concerned, juvenile authorities believe that in the two years since this country's entry into the war we have slipped back at least 10 years in handling child labor. The crusade in children's behalf which began over a century ago, last year experienced the worst set-back in its history.

The Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor appeals to parents to help their children understand that going to school is as essential a war job as any, and if outside work is done, to make sure the combined load is not too heavy for a child to bear. "Don't," the Bureau counsels, "let your child sacrifice his future for immediate cash." To which advice thinking parents surely must subscribe.

Political Parade

By CLEM WHITAKER

It was a challenging coincidence that on the same day that President Roosevelt recently ordered government seizure and operation of the nation's coal mines—after most of the mines had been shut down by the fourth general wartime strike in the industry—the C.I.O., in national convention at Philadelphia, adopted a resolution calling upon Congress to repeal the Smith-Connally anti-strike act.

If there had been no wartime coal strikes in the first place, there would have been no Smith-Connally act to curb such outrageous labor abuses. And therefore it was doubly ironic to have the C.I.O. pleading for repeal of the law at the very time that John L. Lewis' mine workers were again proving that the nation had desperate need of just such an enactment.

The resolution adopted by the Congress of Industrial Organizations, at its Philadelphia meeting, asked Congress to repeal the Smith-Connally act on the ground that "it attacks both labor's patriotism and the war effort." But the facts in the situation are just the opposite. It is the irresponsibility gress who have supported the act.

It is reported, in fact, that the C.I.O. has assessed each of its 5,285,000 members a dollar each to finance this double-headed drive against the act and the men who voted for it. Even if only half the members pay the assessment, that will still make up a tremendous campaign fund—and it is vitally important that the American people should be on guard against attempts at reprisals on Congressmen who have voted for the public welfare, instead of bowing to the demands of irresponsible leaders in the labor movement.

In this writer's opinion, it will take far more than $2,000,000—or $5,000,000—to browbeat this country into permitting its war plants to be tied up by strikes and industrial disorders at a time when American boys will pay with their lives for every day lost in home-front production. But the American people need to be on guard—for eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty!

Month Allowed for Payment of Auto License Fees

The registration period for 1944 automobile licenses opened January 3. Motor vehicle fees for the new year may be paid at district offices of the Department of Motor Vehicles. The 1944 fees will be the same as those paid by motorists last year. If your 1943 registration certificate does not disclose the amount due this year, charts for determining the fee are on display at virtually all service stations.

Motorists were warned this week of the February 4 deadline at which time stiff penalties go into effect for delinquent payment. After the deadline date, a 100 per cent penalty is added to the registration cost, and a 50 per cent penalty is added to the license fee.

Blue and gold stickers, displayed in the lower right hand corner of the windshield, will denote payment of the 1944 fees. The present plates will serve through another year, with new licenses going only to new cars and to out-of-State cars registered for the first time in California.

FIRE FLAMES

By One of the Boys

A recent fire call was caused by poor screening over a chimney. At this time of year when fireplaces are to be used, a thorough inspection of the chimneys should be made before lighting a fire. See that the growth of vines is removed and a proper screen covers it entirely. Experience shows that because a vine is green, it is not safe.

In order that the meetings of the firemen may get back on the regular schedule, the next meeting and drill will be held on January 14.

The firemen's bowling team is creating quite a stir in Monrovia.

every Wednesday evening. It now leads the league. One of the most loyal "rooters" to accompany the boys is Bill Lee. Bill claims that it is his appearance that have brought the team such great success. "Pop" Froehlich seldom misses a game and has now become the reliable substitute. When it looked as though the fellows were about to come home with a bad report, Andy Lievcombe held them up by turning in one of his best scores last Wednesday. Fred Klink, "the manager," said that the good thing about his team is that when one member goes down, one of the others "goes to town."

The cool weather of late has given many people the idea of a fire in the fireplace and wood-burning stoves. Much care is necessary with both. Keep away from them while wearing light clothes, especially night gowns and pajamas. The children should be warned and watched while the fire is burning.

Classes Will Give Flying Start on Defense Jobs

Sierra Madre men and women already in defense jobs or those who plan to enter one of the Southland's war plants later have the chance to step up their knowledge by enrolling in one of the several new tuition free training courses to be given on Caltech's campus beginning this week.

In the past a number of residents of Sierra Madre have attended similar classes, which are under authority of the United States Office of Education. The courses are engineering materials and processes, 10 weeks; physical metallurgy for engineers, 12 weeks; and elementary plastics, eight weeks. There will be two classes each week starting January 4. An advanced class in metallography laboratory began January 3.

Safety Committee at Grammar School, Elected by Pupils of Various Grades is Installed with Ceremony

Elected by their classmates of the grammar school grades from the fifth to the eighth inclusive, the safety committee of the local school was installed with proper ceremony at an assembly Tuesday afternoon. H. H. Brown of the public safety committee of the

H. H. BROWN

Southern California Automobile Club presided over the ceremony and read the safety pledge members of the committee are obliged to subscribe to.

The committee consists of a boy and a girl from each grade. Betty Mae Hubner having been elected chairman and Neil Fergus secretary. Others installed were Joyce Runyon, Bobby Busby, Jimmy Davis, Mignon Darma, Maryanna Haskins, Betty Rowe, Barbara Bowman, Roland Guthrie, Donald Smith, Rosema Bisset, William Annas and Edwin Jacobson.

The committee will meet every two weeks and its members are charged with the responsibility of making the classes to which they belong safety-conscious by taking incidents at regular intervals at which there will be safety discussions. Later in the year there will be showings of motion pictures on the subject of safety.

General duties of the school safety committee are: To be considerate at all times for the safety of all children, especially those who are younger. To assist the principal in every way he or she may direct, not only in matters pertaining to safety but also in any other manner possible. To perform all duties to which they may be assigned by the principal or chairman of the committee. To help spread the educational message of safety and accident prevention by following the "Ideas for Safety" and helping the school in every way by setting a good example.

Duties of the committee as individuals are: To serve as safety helpers in the school building and on the grounds. To wear at all times while on duty the insignia. To represent the classroom at safety committee meetings and report proceedings. To be a study group, presenting various phases of safety to the student body by means of talks, plays, and posters. To maintain order by courteous suggestions, not by bullying or tattling.

'Round The Town

♦ Mrs. Augusta Coats has resigned her position in Dr. J. E. Gossard's office, and is taking a well-earned vacation. She has, however, kindly offered to teach the Red Cross home nursing class which starts next Monday.

♦ Mrs. C. B. Pride, Mrs. Harry Pride and her daughter, Miss Katherine Pride, of Appleton, Wis., have taken Miss Graham's 472 Grove st. house, and plan to make their permanent home here in Sierra Madre. The Prides have many old friends, both here and in Arcadia.

♦ Friends of Clarence E. Ware and his wife Charlotte (formerly of this city) will be sorry to hear that he is in St. Luke's Hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis during the holidays. He is making a good recovery, however, and expects to be back in Wilmar soon.

♦ Mrs. Grace McCarty, 309 East Sierra Madre blvd., had as luncheon guests on Sunday Mrs. Leanne Bowers and baby son, of Los Angeles. Mrs. Bowers, a well-known coloratura soprano in Los Angeles, is a former pupil of Mrs. McCarty, who had a studio in the city before locating here.

Ration Books Lost Thru Carelessness

The Post Office Department advises that hundreds of lost ration books dropped into mail boxes by the finders are being sent to the dead-letter office every month because the owners failed to fill in their addresses on the covers. You may remember that OPA enlisted the aid of the post office to have lost ration books returned by forwarding them direct to owners, provided the proper address was on the cover. A check at the dead-letter office, of 368 copies of War Ration Book 3 showed that 97 per cent could not be returned to owners because there was no address whatsoever on the books, and 7 per cent because they bore obsolete addresses. Failure to have the proper name and address means a delay to the owner and extra work for the ration boards in case a book is lost.

For that meatless day menu serve this healthful, appetizing, all vegetable meal:

VEGETABLE TRAY

- Cauliflower
- Margarine
- Cooked carrot strips
- Salt, pepper
- Tomatoes
- Whole kernel corn, canned or fresh cooked

Cook the cauliflower whole, without removing all of the small tender leaves. Drain well and place in the center of a serving tray or chop plate. Season with a generous amount of softened margarine. Surround with cooked carrot strips tossed in melted margarine; and baked tomatoes with part of the centers scooped out and filled with corn seasoned with salt, pepper and melted margarine.

Other favorite low-point recipes are found in a 32-page cookbook "Ration-Time Recipes." Free copy may be obtained from National Cotton Council, Box 18, Memphis (1) Tennessee.

MAKE MEAT POINTS GO FURTHER!

Cooked at 450° F.

3 lbs. 4 oz. Lost in Cooking at High Temperature

Cooked at 300° F.

Only 1 lb. 7 oz. Lost in Cooking at Low Temperature

With wartime restrictions limiting the amount of meat available to the family table, low temperature meat cookery of beef, pork, lamb, or veal, which yields 15 per cent more servings on the average, is valuable in helping the American Housewife get the maximum from her meat allowance. These two roasts weighed exactly the same before cooking and were cooked to the same degree of doneness. The roast cooked at the high temperature (above) lost three pounds four ounces in cooking. The roast cooked at low temperature (below) lost only one pound seven ounces and provided six to eight more servings than the roast cooked at high temperature.

Whether roasting, broiling, panbroiling, braising, or cooking in water, it pays to cook all meat slowly at low temperatures. The advantages are: 1. Less shrinkage—more servings; 2. Less fuel used; 3. Meat more uniformly cooked; 4. Meat more tender and better flavored; 5. Constant watching unnecessary; 6. Spattering and burning eliminated; 7. Easier to carve.
